I am the hearing officer today in the matter of the Department of Information Technology's notice of proposed Rulemaking regarding the repeal and replacement of the New Mexico Administrative Code rules, 1.1 point 12.5 and one point 12.9. This rule making was proper.
Noticed and published on May 19, 2026 in Volume 37, issue 10 of the New Mexico Register.
All timelines have been met in accordance with the State Rules Act.
Written comments are accepted through 5:00 PM today and must be emailed to David Pardo at Doit NM Gov.

We are here for the public rule hearing. Mr. Pardo, if you could please provide a brief statement regarding the purpose of this rule making and after you have finished, we will proceed to oral public comment.

Pardo, David, DoIT 1:33

Thank you, Cassandra.

This repeal and replacement updates the rules governing information technology, oversight and certification to reflect current practices and statutory authority.

The changes revised the title of part 5 to oversight of information technology projects in Part 9 to certification of information technology projects. They remove references to the no longer existing.

Information Technology Commission and align responsibilities with the Department of Information Technology.

Statutory authorities are updated to refer to the New Mexico Department of Information Technology Act, ensuring consistency with the department's role since its creation in 2007.

In addition, the repeal and replacement eliminate outdated or unused definitions and introduce new definitions that clarify project management roles.

Remove independent verification and validation requirements.

And the project certification Committee and update certification processes.

Provisions are revised to modernize the oversight and certification procedures for executive agency information technology projects, including requirements for project plans, risk assessments and face funding tied to certification milestones. These rules were originally enacted in 2005, two years prior to the establishment of the Department of Inform.

Technology.

And have not been updated since.

Thank you.
